Revolutionary Upgrade Enhances Network Scalability

Web3 Analyst

The Kusama network has successfully implemented a groundbreaking upgrade, codenamed "Velocity," which has dramatically improved its transaction processing capabilities. This upgrade, first tested on Kusama before its planned deployment on Polkadot, has increased the network's throughput by an impressive 300%, allowing for up to 15,000 transactions per second.

Dr. Gavin Wood, founder of Polkadot and Kusama, commented on the upgrade: "Velocity represents a quantum leap in blockchain scalability. Its successful implementation on Kusama paves the way for a new era of high-performance, interoperable blockchain networks."

Governance Proposal Passes for Enhanced Privacy Features
